

THE JOURNAL.

BUSINESS ITEMS.

If any of our friends have legal business to transact in Philadelphia, they cannot place it in better hands, than our friend Wm. L. RADIN, Esq., whose card may be found in another column. He is a good lawyer and a clever fellow, and will do full justice to his clients. Office No. 66 South 6th St.

We request the attention of our readers to the card of HUGHES & IRLIN in another column, the proprietors of the Tyrone City Hotel. Give them a call, when you visit Tyrone, if you wish to be well treated, and get acquainted with a couple of clever fellows.

We see by a card in another part of our paper, that our friend HARTSHORN, whom we announced sometime since as having retired to private life, has again launched his craft, at Lumber City. HARTSHORN & McCRAKEN, are a pair of "sound eggs," as the boys say, and if you want cheap goods just give them a call.

We call attention to the list of Sheriff's Sales in another column, by which it will be seen that a large quantity of valuable property will be exposed to sale at the September Court. Speculators will have a first rate opportunity to make profitable investments.

The Clearfield Academy will be opened on the 4th of September next, under the direction of W. A. CAMPBELL, A. B. This institution is much needed, and we hope, as the trustees have gone to a great deal of trouble to secure the services of a good and competent Principal, that it will be well sustained by our citizens.

We call the attention of painters, and others to the fact, that a large and excellent supply of White Lead and Linseed Oil, has just been received at Mossop & POTTARFF's.

The new system adopted by Mossop & POTTARFF of selling goods at city prices, has succeeded admirably, although they purchased the largest stock ever before brought to the county, and recanted several times since spring, the demand has still exceeded the supply. They are again getting on a new and splendid assortment which they will offer for sale on the same terms.

By reference to another column it will be seen that the partnership heretofore existing between Geo W. Orr & John Klinger, has been dissolved. The business will still be carried on as usual by Mr. Orr and the books are in his hands for collection.

There is a tremendous excitement now at ULMAN'S Clothing Store, next door to the office of L. J. Crans Esq. MOYER is selling off at cost, and the low price of his goods has alarmed all our tailors, and dealers in ready made clothing. If you want a cheap suit, call immediately.

Many of our readers, find it difficult to obtain at all times, certain drugs and medicines at home, and will therefore be gratified to learn that by sending to Tyrone they can procure them at the Store of Dr. JAMES M. MARTIN. See card in another column.

Blacksmith's will see by a notice in another column, that a good shop, and complete set of tools, can be had of HURTHAL & BRO., at their mills, about six miles from this place. This is one of the best locations in the county.

In another column will be found the advertisement of our friend Mr. D. S. PLOTNER who has opened a Hotel at New Washington. Having had occasion to stop with Mr. Plotner, a few days since, we can most heartily recommend his house to the traveling community. No pains are spared to render visitors comfortable, and his table would be a model for some other hotels we wot of.

The excitement at the "Old Corner" where the blood red standard of Gen. A. M. HILLS floats on the breeze, has increased ten fold notwithstanding the hot weather, since the Gen's return from the City with another large and splendid assortment of goods. Call and look at his magnificent lot of fashionable bonnets, and black, watered, and fancy silk Mantillas.

Everything now-a-days must be American, and of course we must have an American boarding house. JOHN S. RADEBACH having caught the spirit of the times, has just opened one on a large and comfortable scale. He invites the public to give him a call, and feels confident that he will be able to render satisfaction.

It is said that leather has recently risen from twenty to fifty per cent, nevertheless RUSSELL & Co., at Pennsville, continue to furnish it cheap as usual for cash. They have always on hand an excellent supply, and invite shoemakers, saddlers, and others, to give them a call. They pay the highest price in cash for hides.

There have been a good many complaints recently about our Clearfield market, and we are glad to learn, by a notice in another column, that our enterprising friends RADEBACH & MORROW, have determined to supply it with at least one of the indispensable luxuries, good fresh beef. The fact that Billy's "corporation" has enlarged considerably since he got into the butchering business, is the best evidence of the quality of the meat. It's cheap, fat, and tender.

Prince Paul, of Wurttemberg, is now in this county selecting botanical and ornithological specimens, but we doubt if he has met, in all his travels, more beautiful, excellent and cheap specimens of furniture, than are to be seen at the Ware Rooms of DANIEL BRUNER in this borough. Call and take a look.

GRAND EXPOSE.

BY THE "CORPORAL."

After a long, arduous, and faithful watch, I have at length discovered the mysteries and blasphemous secrets of that band of "torches" the "Know Nothings," and believing that my allegiance to the Constitution requires me to expose their unholy doings, that my fellow American citizens, and brother democrats, may beware, I have resolved, be the consequences what they may, to publish them to the world. I feel that in doing so I am running a great risk, for the bloody bones and grinning skull of the murdered Morgan, remind me of the fate I cannot but anticipate. But shall an officer of the valiant Chickadee-moose Rangers hesitate or falter at the approach of danger? No never! Let it come, I am prepared to meet my fate, and die a martyr to my country, feeling assured that posterity will erect a monument to my memory, whose cloud-capped summit shall tower far above the pigmy columns of Washington and Benker Hill!

Then to my work. Through the alleys and by-paths, the streets and lanes, among the pig-pens and dung-hills, in the chicken coops and dog-kennels, in the cellar and garret, in the church and tavern, in the court house and private office, I have watched them and followed them, noting every manoeuvre, and perfecting myself for the accomplishment of the great task; in the performance of which I have thus far progressed. Wherever I have seen them, I have been struck with astonishment and horror by their peculiar movements, stamping them at once with the guilt of high treason, because they disregarded the right, and privilege guaranteed to every man by our glorious Constitution—"to know" as much as the law allows him." Yea, verily, upon one occasion, one of them whispered in my ear, "Corporal, you're one of us,—you don't know" as much as the law allows you!"

But after a long and toilsome watch, at last I cornered them! It was at the dead hour of night. The waning moon looked pale in the heavens, and gave to all around a jaundiced, sickly hue. I had just closed the lids of Blackstone, and was proceeding home to Draw the drapery of my mouth about me And lie down to pleasant dreams, when, horrible to relate, I beheld two of these "traitors to their God and Country," skulking round the corner of the market house! Here then was a glorious opportunity; my long and toilsome labors were about to be crowned with success! I quietly slipped off my boots, and with cautious tread, and quivering flesh, crawled gently up that filthy alley. Slowly I advanced, when some soft and squishy thing beneath my naked foot caused me to direct my attention thitherward, and when I raised my head, they had disappeared. But with my usual perseverance, I advanced, determined to explore all the secret places of this dreadful alley. At length I arrived at a carpenter's shop, and through the crevices I, the "Corporal," —beheld an ungodly sight!

There were assembled in solemn convulge the "Know Nothings!" At last I had found them, and I knew "mine hour had come,"—that hour-in which I was to do my country a signal service, that would wreath my brow with never-fading laurels.

At one end of the room, on a glue-keg, sat the Grand Magniloquent, or presiding officer, who was supported on either side by two Past Fiddle-de-gigs, with naked, blood-stained swords crossed over their heads, and holding in their hands a "bloody bishop's mitre," significant I suppose of the decapitation of the Catholic clergy. Standing in groups about the room were the members, dressed in a garb, I am sorry to say, resembling the uniform of the Chickadee-moose Rangers! Suddenly the Grand Magniloquent, in a stentorian voice, called the meeting to order, striking five raps with a ponderous mallet or gavel, like those commonly used for mortifying locust posts. When the members were all seated, an officer announced seven candidates ready for initiation, whom he was directed to introduce. They were brought into the room through a trap door, blindfolded, and formed into a circle round the presiding officer, who commenced to mumble forth some singular incantation that sounded like the following:—"Know-nothing-themosham-reicorene-lmu! Nxt btxok tlogmx."

The lights were extinguished, and soon the room was illuminated with a pale, blueish, sickly flame, and perfumed with an odor very much like brimstone. The Grand Magniloquent then turned two somersets forward and thirteen backwards, when he appeared in the character of John Jonston, better known as "Black John," and proceeded to administer the oath, which was as follows:—"The candidates named, first placed one hand on Morgan's exposition of Masonry, and the other to their nose, in the significant manner of the boy when he wishes to say, 'you can't come it.)

"You and each of you, do solemnly promise, affirm, assavate, swear, promulgate, and predicate, that you will adopt as your creed, the sentiments, constitution, by-laws, and forms of this order, about which you must always 'Know Nothing.' That you will never divulge its forms, secrets, ceremonies, or existence,—that you will represent it outside as antagonistic to Catholicism, though you 'Know Nothing' about it, that you will use all your exertions to procure the lynching of Stephen Arnold Douglass, by immersing him in a hoghead of molasses, and then setting him for a fly trap, in the rotunda of the Capitol,—that you will lend your aid to Morganize any outsider who shall expose our holy order, by setting him adrift, at midnight, in a boat without oars, at the head of Buttermilk Falls, or feeding him on Mother Moore's 'sour-kront,'—that you will ever regard the Constitution of the United States a piece of moonshine like Joe Smith's bible,—that you will consider the Declaration of Independence, merely a piece of bombast got up by Tom Jefferson, and other old fogies, for buncomb,—and that you will regard this oath as sacred, under the penalty of being Morganized by having your throat cut from ear to ear with a pitch fork, and then being buried alive beneath a dung pile. So 'help you—potato.'"

Each member took this blasphemous oath, and then proceeded to sign the constitution, by opening a vein and dipping the pen in his own blood!

This is all I was able to learn on that occasion, for being very suddenly seized with a pain under the shirt, I was compelled to leave. Should I be permitted, still to continue my discoveries, I will give them to the public, but I fear I shall be compelled to endow the sad fate of Morgan, by being fed on "Mother Moore's sour-kront." If so, I bid the public a kind adieu, only requesting that when I am gone, as a memento of their gratitude, they shall preserve the original Mass., of this exposition in the glass case, with Franklin's printing press, in the upper room of the Patent Office.

Speaking Right Out.

The Lewistown "Aurora," edited by Wm. P. Shaw, Esq., Democrat, but friend of Prohibition, not having the fear of the party lash before its eyes, speaks right out in regard to its feelings on the gubernatorial question, thus:—

"Some of our brethren of the press, on the Democratic side of the house, are perplexing their brains to a most unlimited extent to prove that James Pollock, the Whig candidate for Governor, is the candidate for the Temperance Party. This we take to be the most suicidal policy they could pursue. It induces the great mass of the friends of Temperance to look upon him as their standard bearer in the coming campaign. If the strength of the temperance organization in this State can be concentrated upon Jas. Pollock, we shall most heartily do what little we can to produce the result if the Democratic press will force it upon us, and will at the same time return them our sincere thanks for 'keeping before the people.' They might as well try to ascend to one of the planets on a sunbeam as to convince those who consider the temperance reform paramount to all other subjects, politically, that Wm. Bigler is as good a Temperance man as either of the candidates. They may tell us that Governor Bigler is opposed to the Nebraska Bill; have we any guarantee we find the evidence to prove that he is not? 'Non-committal on all subjects' is his motto. But what care we about Southern slavery while our country is subject to a far greater curse—slavery to the power of King Alcohol. Up then, ye friends of temperance, and deal uniformly one blow for the annihilation of all non-committal candidates, and for the triumph of the temperance cause."

Censor.

We like, occasionally, to pick up a Democratic paper, that has spirit and manliness enough to admit the false doctrines and false issues of its party. We therefore commend to the perusal of our readers, the following from the Jeffersonian. Go it, Col. you're on the right track, this fall, and no mistake.

The Clarion Democrat, and Jeffersonian Republican, both upon us to publish the celebrated speech, or some other Nebraska speech, for the information of the democracy of Jefferson, but we must decline their invitation, and state that our county is flooded with cart loads of such documents, franked by members of Congress and sent in here to prejudice the public mind in favor of the measure. Therefore it is unnecessary to publish it here, as the government has saved us that trouble; but if Alex. or Dan'l. will furnish us a speech made in Pennsylvania by a Democrat in 1861, in favor of the compromise measures, who asserted that those acts were intended to repeal the Missouri compromise, and permit slavery to cross the line of 36 deg. 30 min., we will publish it with pleasure. Gentlemen, you must admit that the Democratic party preached false doctrines in 1861 or that the Douglass party are doing it now. Our files show that we told the people then that the Missouri compromise act was to remain inviolate, and if we said the horse was seventeen feet high we will stick to it."

The Sunday Law

Mayor Conrad, of Philadelphia, thus speaks of the effects of the recent enforcement of the Sunday law in that city:—

"The results amply rewarded the effort. A quiet, long unknown, fell upon the Sabbath of our city. The shouts of revelry and riot, and the clamor of contending fire companies no longer disturbed our streets; and not a single case of fire, riot or other popular disturbance, not a case of gross personal violence was reported within the city upon any subsequent Sabbath. The following exhibit of what cases for the nights of Saturday and Sunday, heard in this office, will show the almost magical effect of this policy."

On the Mondays for five weeks preceding the Sunday proclamation, the cases numbered 49, 35, 37, 40, and 35. After the proclamation they diminished to 23, 13, 12, and 7. That day pure, purified the following days, and leavened the whole week with a better spirit. The general diminution of offences is without parallel and the present wholesome condition of the city, in regard to the public tranquility makes it my duty to persist in a policy so beneficial until arrested by the actual interposition of unquestionable authority."

THE LAST REMEDY.—Said—lived on the Banks of the Delaware, and was a mighty hunter.

He was plagued with a degenerate son, who had manifested no predilection for his father's interesting pursuits. One day Sam's patience gave out entirely, and he exclaimed in the bitterness of his mortification—"Cuss me, Tom, if you're not got perfectly worthless, you'll neither mind nor fly, I'll be hanged, if I don't send you to school!"

REM AND LOCOFOCISM.—The assertion has been attributed to a democratic member of Congress, that the grogshop is the nursery of Democracy. As a great mortality exists among the faithful in New Hampshire, Gov. BAKER wants to improve the condition of the nurseries, and has therefore vetoed the bill establishing the city of Concord, because it allows the City Councils to prohibit the sale of intoxicating drinks. The House passed the liquor bill, 155 to 106.

The Albany Journal says the Catholic Church at Keeseville has assumed a position similar to that which led to the excommunication by the Bishop of the St. Louis Church at Buffalo. The St. Louis Church have a minister as independent as themselves, and hold services regularly. One of the members recently remarked to a friend that they "should look higher than the Bishop for pardon."

The Press on the Greytown Affair.

There press all over the country condemn, in strong terms, the late outrage committed at Greytown, by order of the United States. We have not yet seen or heard of one paper reckless enough to defend it, although some such will doubtless be found. Extracts from the eastern press have been freely given in our columns.—The following is from the Cincinnati Commercial:

"If these transactions are, as they are represented to be, in obedience to the orders of the President of the United States, it is not too much to say that they are infamous. No man of true courage, no man of genuine military spirit, would have given such an order, or justified such an act. It is cowardly—calculated to debase the character of our national forces, and to degrade the people of the United States in the eyes of the world. We have had examples enough of this kind. If, trusting in our strength, we may trample now and then upon the law of nations with impunity, there are laws of nature and of God which should be sacred with binding upon all governments that profess to be amenable to the obligations of a common humanity."

An Administration paper out west having asserted that the democrats of New York will roll up a "tremendous majority" at the next November election, Pratt's, of the Louisville Journal, says, they will be far more likely to roll up the white of their eyes.

The brother of Ex-President Fillmore, died of Cholera at St. Pauls, Minnesota, last week.
